

HALF MILLION GREET WILLKIE IN PHILA. AND HEAR SPEECHES

Republican Candidate For President Accorded Tremendous Reception

33,000 AT SHIBE PARK

Showered by Veritable Snow
Storm of Confetti and Ticker
Tape Along Streets

By International News Service

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 5.—State and city Republican leaders drew cheer and encouragement today from the tremendous welcome accorded Wendell L. Willkie on his return to this city of his political birth for a whirlwind eight-hour visit and a major campaign address.

A crowd estimated variously at 25,000 to 33,000 greeted the GOP presidential candidate at Shibe Park last night where he told a cheering audience he wanted to lead the fight for peace in the United States and charged the New Deal with leading the country toward war.

But it was the reception given Willkie in Philadelphia's central city streets and even in the supposedly hostile northern and northeastern industrial sections that brought his supporters their most heartfelt joy.

With some 500,000 people lining the curbs and craning office building windows to see him, Willkie rode in an open car through a veritable snow storm of confetti, ticker tape and torn-up telephone books in the business area. It was admittedly the greatest demonstration since a similar reception to President Roosevelt on a campaign visit to Philadelphia four years ago.

At least 10,000 jammed Reynburn Plaza to hear Willkie's initial greeting to the city after his arrival at Broad street station. Thousands more were at Independence Hall when Willkie paid obeisance to the shrine of American liberty.

Following is the text of the speech by Wendell Willkie, Republican Presidential candidate, in Shibe Park last night:

I am very happy to be in Philadelphia. I have an exceedingly pleasant recollection of the treatment I received the last time I visited your city.

It was the spirit of Philadelphia that started this campaign off as a crusade. It is in that spirit that the Republican Party will win through to victory next month.

Tonight I want to talk to you about national defense. There can be no better place than Philadelphia to discuss this question. It was from this city 164 years ago that the call went out to the 13 colonies, to take up arms in defense of their liberties. The American people will never be persuaded to take up arms in any other cause.

But I have another reason for wanting to talk about defense in Philadelphia. Yours is one of the greatest manufacturing cities in the world. For many years you have typified the industrial genius of America. And it is in that industrial genius that the present hope of this Nation lies. You men and women of Philadelphia know that if we are to make America strong, we must get to work.

And you are not likely to be confused by the difference between something that is on order.

YOUNG PEOPLE TOLD THAT LIFE IS A TRUST

Dr. Francis Harvey Green,
Pennington, N. J., is Speaker at Hulmeville Anniversaries

"CHOOSE ARIGHT"

HULMEVILLE, Oct. 5.—That life is a trust, "placed in your keeping and mine by the Divine One, who rules over us—a trust to use in serving humanity" was forcibly stressed by Dr. Francis Harvey Green, before a group of young people who filled the auditorium of Neshaminy Methodist Church, last evening, at the fifth in the series of services marking the 100th anniversary of the founding of Methodism in the community.

Considering for nearly an hour the choices which one is privileged to make, as well as mentioning briefly those things over which one has no control, consequently no choice, Dr. Green who is head of Pennington School for Boys, Pennington, N. J., belied his 80 years. In the manner which has noted him as an outstanding speaker for over 60 years, he gave an inspiring message, and as always one interspersed with humor.

Although an individual has no choice as to parents or place of birth, there are countless choices throughout life. The three great choices, as pointed out by Dr. Green, are: Choice of a business or profession, choice of friends, and choice of good or evil, or in other words Christ or Satan.

"How foolish the choices we sometimes make—taking the poorer and the pettier! Young folks take your choice in life. I would that you will choose aright."

Among the numerous statements made by this popular and beloved orator, were:

"Tell me the choices you make, and I'll read the riddle of your life."
"It's a fine thing to be born well the first time, but it helps more to be born the second time."

"It's greater and grander to be sons and daughters of Godly parents, than to be sons and daughters of Kings and Queens with all their pomp."

"It's a great thing to choose a definite business or profession, and fasten yourself to it. It is important to pick something. Have side issues—yes—but don't be a 'jack of all trades'."

"When the young men come to me to ask guidance in choice of a life work, I advise them to 'Hold the reins loose, and let God guide you.'"

"The only disgrace with hard work is the disgrace of doing it badly. All toil is holy if the toiler is holy. . . . Don't get the idea that the white-collar job is more important than other work. . . . Choose something to which you believe God called you."

In regard to choice of friends Dr. Green commented: "In choosing the wrong friends the tragedy is the pulling down of life, instead of the lifting up of life. That's the business we ought to be in—lifting up people."

"It is so important to form the right friendships, for friendships are the essence of life."

"It's safer to fool with a bee, than to be with a fool. . . . for the influence of the sting of wrong friends will last throughout time and eternity."

"Choose you! Choose aright!"

Kenneth Comly, South Langhorne, president of the Wesley Club of the church, introduced the speaker of the evening. Music was provided by Miss Helen Harkness, vocalist; and Elwyn Neitzel, violinist. The respective accompanists were Miss Clara L. Illick and Mrs. Neitzel.

Discuss Axis Victory

Berlin, Oct. 5.—Plans for an axis victory over the British Empire and the aftermath of such a triumph were the chief topics discussed by Chancellor Hitler and Premier Mussolini yesterday at Brenner Pass, according to authentic quarters today.

But the actual nature of the expected "knock-out blow" and the point at which it will strike with what German sources called "shattering violence" remained the secret of the Fuehrer and Il Duce.

The decision on the next major military move was reserved for the two dictators alone, informed quarters revealed. And it also holds the key of the share of coming events.

The private Hitler-Il Duce discussion was preceded by what was described as a high axis "war and diplomatic council," in which again the heaviest emphasis was focussed on the military outlook.

It was believed that this "council" included calculations of the chances of ending the war in short order through the expected axis blow and everything pointed to the conclusion that there was no talk of "peace."

Republican Registrations Show Big Increases

Harrisburg, Oct. 5.—Both major parties bring to a close today intensive drives to increase their registrations in preparation for the important Fall election, with all indications pointing to substantial Republican gains.

Communities throughout the State report a large increase in registration, indicative of the great interest in the Presidential election, which is just one month off today.

Republicans have pressed a campaign designed to roll up a total Republican registration of 3,000,000 votes. Should they succeed it would bring the G. O. P. registration figure to its highest total in history. In 1931 Republican registration reached its greatest total with 2,963,738 registered voters, a majority of 2,239,491.

The present Republican registration is 2,583,322, or a majority of 547,794 over the Democrats. The Democratic registration is 2,035,528. In addition there are 41,603 Non-Partisan voters and 19,033 for minor parties registered.

Hurl Back Attack To Bomb England

London, Oct. 5.—British fighting planes, working in close co-operation with anti-aircraft batteries, this afternoon hurled back a new German attempt to bomb the British capital.

Three bombs landed close to where Herbert Morrison, minister of supply, and Admiral Sir Edward Evans were making a tour of East End air raid shelters.

PROMINENT CO. FARMER WANTS NEW DEAL OUSTED

75-Year-Old Harry Trego,
Pineville, Warns Against Dictatorship

ERECTS A WILLKIE SIGN

PINEVILLE, Oct. 5.—A well-known farmer of Pineville, 75-year-old Harry R. Trego, declares that "if we fail in our effort to oust the New Deal, this will be the last time that we vote for a president in this country."

Trego made this declaration as he stood beneath a home-made "Willkie-for-President" sign which spans his 213-year-old homestead.

"I can see it as plain as day and I'm no politician and I'm not an educated man either, but we are headed for dictatorship just as sure as guns if we can't stop Roosevelt and his New Deal gang," Farmer Trego continued.

It will be 213 years October 12th that Trego's great grandfather, Jacob Trego, built the Colonial house which has been in that family ever since, and Mr. Trego has been watching things around that farm for 75 years. He has always voted Republican nationally, but does not hesitate to vote for a Democratic neighbor for a local office.

The day that Willkie was nominated, Trego made a sign, "Willkie, Our Next President."

Township Residents Discuss School Affairs

About 40 attended the meeting last night in the Croydon fire station, which was held for the purpose of discussing the school needs and educational problems of Bristol Township. The meeting was called by David Miller, Cedar avenue, at the "request of a number of parents."

Mr. Miller presided over the meeting and temporary officers were chosen as follows:

President, Mr. Miller; vice-president, Mrs. James Quigley; secretary, Mrs. Spencer; financial secretary, Lewis Leffler; treasurer, George Rossett. The association will be known as the Parents and Taxpayers Association.

Numerous opinions were expressed and it was decided to make a canvas of the entire Township to learn the sentiments of the people.

The Association will contact the school board and inquire as to the method used in selecting a site for the proposed new junior high school building; how the money is to be raised, and what effect it will have on the taxes of the district and the general needs of the educational system in the township.

Another meeting will be held Friday evening in the Croydon fire station.

Fans Hopeful Rain Will Not Halt Series

By International News Service

Detroit, Oct. 5.—Although the threat of rain was in the air, fans were hopeful today that the weather would not interfere with the fourth game of the World Series between Detroit and Cincinnati in Briggs Stadium. The count now stands two games for Detroit and one for Cincinnati.

There was a possibility that Manager Del Baker, of the Tigers, would send Buck Newsom back to the mound in an effort to chalk up another win for the Tigers. Newsom pitched and won the first game in Cincinnati. Paul Trout was the alternate choice for Detroit while Gene Thompson was to be the Cincinnati hurler.

If rain forces postponement of today's game, the fourth and fifth tilts will be played in Detroit Sunday and Monday, with the series moving back to Cincinnati on Tuesday, if necessary.

SELECT THE ARTISTS FOR BRISTOL CONCERTS

Edward Kilenyi To Appear
Here Oct. 14th in Advance
Of World Debut

SOPRANO NEXT MARCH

In advance of his world debut at Carnegie Hall, New York City, on October 21st, Edward Kilenyi, European pianist, will open the Bristol co-operative concert series in Bristol high school on Monday, the 14th of October.

The concert association officials feel fortunate in securing Mr. Kilenyi, whose fame has preceded him. The hour for the concert is 8.30, and the trio of presentations during the season will be in the Bristol high school auditorium.

Kilenyi is a pupil and protege of Ernst von Dohnanyi from his eighth year, and was that master's partner in four-hand music of Schubert at the Schubert Centenary celebrations in Hungary and Rumania. He was acclaimed as the "twenty-year-old Liszt" when he performed Liszt's E Flat Concerto in Paris in the same hall where the composer had played it, and with the same historic orchestra of the Societe des Concerts de Conservatoire.

It is said that Kilenyi is undoubtedly the most important new entry upon the American musical scene in many seasons, and his Town Hall debut recital promises to take its place as a history-making event in the line of great pianism.

Dates have been set for the three concerts. The artists for Thursday, December 19th, will be the General Platoff Don Cossack Chorus, of which Nicholas Kostukoff is conductor.

The early Spring will be the time for the final program, when on Monday, March 24th, Muriel Dickson, soprano, will sing.

The season of 1940-41 marks the first for the co-operative concerts here, and the more than 600 who have secured memberships have expressed a desire that they continue.

VIGOR OF MODERN YOUTH

College students of today are developing into a new and more vigorous physical type, according to the physical training department of the University of California. This is naturally particularly true of football players. Similar tendencies are seen among the girl students, so these changes seem almost universal among young people in colleges and universities.

The old idea of the book worm who burns the midnight oil at his studies so persistently that he becomes a physical weakling is passe. It is now realized that there is little use to stuff heads with knowledge if it tops a burden of physical handicaps.

Formerly the majority of students did little in athletics except sit in the grandstand and yell for the athletes. Now the idea is more or less generally accepted that every young person needs athletic activity. This constant exercise is turning out a race of educated young men and women who are far stronger physically than their parents were at their age. They look as if they could conquer the world.

These excellent ideas have had a wide influence in providing physical development in the high schools and lower grades, but a large amount of money is required to provide adequate athletic equipment and opportunity for all boys and girls. Unfortunately that money is not available in many places, or only to a limited degree.

Yet as a rule the young people of today look healthy. Some of them of course play the game of social life and activities outside of study so hard that they still look a bit pale when they are finally dragged out of bed in the morning.

TRAFFIC DANGERS

The country is passing through the dangerous season from the traffic point of view. Autumn days have the highest accident rate of the year.

This can be attributed to a number of causes. During the morning and evening rush hours the light is imperfect but not sufficiently so to make driving with lights necessary. Accidents are the inevitable result. Nor is the presto tempo of summer traffic moderated until snow and ice make necessary, if then. This is the season of wet, slippery pavements and low visibility.

Once warned of the dangerous days it behooves every man, woman and child to exercise at least one more ounce of caution if not out of consideration for others then for reason of personal safety. There are a dozen traffic "don'ts" which might bear repeating at this time but one injunction covers them all—keep your eyes open and your mind on the serious business of walking or driving.

After a month of talking out back platforms, Willkie has still not acquired the tremolo of the true Mrs. Wish or snake-oil peddler.

SYNOPSIS

On a wharf in Patuxent, Maryland, ex-Colonel Donald Colby, late A.D.C. to General Gonzalo Gutierrez, beats up Tod Ferguson, burly oysterman, for insulting Geneva Benet, daughter of Capt. Benet of the "America." Ferguson was fired by Benet and infers someone was murdered on the ship. Later, Geneva confides in Colby that she had brought two men from Leonardtown to work for her father. "They were afraid to stay but you wouldn't be," she says. A new look creeps into Colby's eyes. "Young lady," he demanded crisply, "shall we talk?" Geneva tells Colby that her father is in charge of a fleet of old liners laid up by the Shipping Board awaiting purchasers. It is impossible to get a watchman since three men have disappeared. Colby takes the job. On the pier, the girl calls to the "Monticello" on which she lives with her father. The ghostlike ships and every atmosphere fill Colby with foreboding.

CHAPTER IV

"Monticello, ahoy!" Again the girl's voice echoed eerily over the silent river.
"Ahoy!" came a faint answering hail. "Be ashore in a minute."
It was not one, but many minutes before a battered and unpainted rowboat drew up alongside at the oars a squat, thick bodied man with a prognathous jaw, stiff and bushy black brows that grew into a single line. His eyes were keen and alert and openly studied the recruit.
"So, you got one man at least, Miss Geneva?"
"Yes," the girl said briskly. "But he's not from Leonardtown—he's from one of those oil boats."
"I'll sit aft," the girl called and dropped into the stern, there to sit staring ahead, her eyes bigger and more sombre than ever.

It was when the deeply laden rowboat was perhaps half way out to the nearest of the ships that Donald Colby received his first shock. He was, with deep interest, studying the web of rusted cables securing the Monticello to the shore when, high overhead, sounded three sharp noises. Wap! Wap! Wap! followed by a throat tearing cry. So redolent of agony and mortal fear was it that Colby felt the hairs on the back of his neck lift as they had that time when a trio of Paraguayan metecas had come leaping into his quarters poisoning bloodied bayonets and very anxious to kill for the greater glory of la Republica.

As though paralyzed, the oarsman paused in mid stroke and in the ensuing breathless silence water dripping from his oar blades made a pattering sound—loud out of all proportion.
"What—what was that?" he quavered.
"Three shots generally mean that somebody's getting hurt," Colby observed with macabre calm.
"Oh, eh—" the girl's bright lips writhed, a hand flashed up to her head and she started violently.
"Hurry, Dutton! For God's sake hurry! Maybe it's—where was Father when you came away?"

The oarsman made no reply, only dug his stout ash blades deep into the steaming surface while Colby, snatching up an extra pair of oars, quickly added his powerful strokes to make the little boat fairly fly through the silvery fog.
"Where was Father?" the girl once more anxiously demanded.
"Dunno—I was in my cabin. Everything was quiet."

With magic suddenness a towering wall of steel loomed just ahead of the rowboat's prow. "Back! Back hard!" screamed the girl and the two rowers were only barely able to prevent a crashing impact. "Oh, Dutton, where's the ladder? Quick! We must hurry."
"Ahoy!" A voice hailed excitedly from the mist above. "Hurry up! Something's happened—hear them shots?"
"Yes! Which way is the ladder?" Colby called.

"To yer right—hurry up!" A passenger's ladder materialized a moment later and while Colby quickly made fast the painter the girl sprang out and went running up the ladder with Dutton at her heels.
On gaining the deck of the Monticello, otherwise known as the Kaiser Wilhelm II, Colby found his companions on a wide promenade deck along which many blank portholes stared at them like so many vacant eyes.
"What's happened, Hartney?" demanded the girl in quivering accents.
"Don't know," growled the watchman, "and I don't give a damn." Buttoning up a frayed pea-jacket the blunt featured individual started for the rail. "I've had enough of Hartney started down the ladder, but Colby's hand shot out and rounded the deserter up short.

this here business. I'm quittin' before they get me, too."

"But you can't quit!" protested the Benet girl catching desperately at the word he uttered. "You signed on for two months." Hartney thrust her roughly aside.
"Lay off, I wouldn't stay no longer on these rotten floating coffins for five hundred grand."
"But you've got to stay," the girl insisted, her voice harsh with desperation. "At least until I—we can get somebody to take your place."
"Nothin' doin'!" Hartney started down the ladder, but Colby's hand shot out, closed on the pea-jacket's collar and rounded the deserter up short.

"Hartney, you're staying here," he announced, quietly. "You've signed Artillery."
"Mebbe. But gettin' murdered wasn't in them," snarled the prisoner and aimed a stinging left at the tall stranger's head. Curiously enough that narrow dark head wasn't there any more and it was Hartney who fell sprawling on the deck—as a man is apt when he catches a jolting uppercut under the chin.
"Now maybe you'll obey orders!" Colby with a tight smile jerked an automatic from the fallen man's coat pocket. "I'm borrowing this just in case you might get some unwise inspiration."
"Now you—and you, too," he included Dutton, "are going to do just what you're told to do and when you're told to do it. Get that?"
"Oh hurry! For God's sake hurry!" the girl's eyes became dark pools of anxiety. "Somebody—Father may be hurt or in deadly danger."

"Steady—get a hold on yourself," Colby flung at her and then transferred his attention to Hartney. "Where did you last see Captain Benet?"

"He 'lowed he was goin' over on the Mount Vernon," mumbled the swarthy watchman.
"Any other watchmen on the fleet?"
"Yeh. Mears oughtta be on the America, and Norton on the George Washington."

"Miss Benet," Colby announced as he checked Hartney's 32 automatic and the contents of its chamber—he was careful on such points, "Dutton and I are going to take a

ABOUT SCOUTS AND SCOUTING

The material used in this column will be contributed by the Scribes of the following units and Scouters interested in the work: Bristol Presbyterian Church, Scout Troop 3002, Cub Pack 3002; Harriman Methodist Church, Scout Troop 3007; St. James' Episcopal Church, Scout Troop 3025, Cub Pack 3025; Group of Citizens headed by Walter Pitzonka, Troop No. 3048; Bristol B. P. O. E. Seascouts "Elks" 5052.

Both the Honorary President, Franklin D. Roosevelt, and Honorary Vice-President, Herbert C. Hoover, of the Boy Scouts of America, have just recorded complete support of the Boy Scout emergency training program. It is "admirably timed and suited to the needs of the hour," said President Roosevelt in a letter sent to Dr. James E. West, Chief Scout Executive, after a study of the plan of action proposed by National Boy Scout leaders and now being put into effect in all sections of the country.

The President who, in accordance with custom, has served as Honorary President of the Scout movement since his inauguration in 1933, and was an active Scout leader for many years prior to that time, said further:

THE WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON

My dear Dr. West:

I am most favorably impressed with the scope and magnitude of the emergency service training program now being developed throughout the Nation by the Boy Scouts of America and outlined in Bulletin No. 11, for which please accept my thanks.

At no time in its history has our country had greater need for this kind of serious work and preparation. Your plans for providing it seem admirably timed and suited to the needs of the hour and within the scope of the regular program of training for boys of Scout age.

I am proud of the achievements of our Boy Scouts. The movement's record of service in distress, disaster and every type of emergency, as well as its achievements for character building and citizenship training, commands universal respect. The present emergency will afford an excellent opportunity for our Scouts to assume new responsibilities and to gain practical experience through patriotic service.

Very sincerely yours,
FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT.

Dr. West, in making public the text of the President's message, emphasized the pertinence of Mr. Roosevelt's statement on action "within the scope of the regular program of training for Scout age" and pointed out that what is being developed is an intensification of the established and time-tested Scout program rather than the adoption of new and untried methods and activities.

At the same time Dr. West invited attention to former President Herbert Hoover's statement of complete agreement with the basic premise of Scout preparedness—that today's paramount need is "the strengthening and invigorating of democracy in the United States."

Mr. Hoover, now Honorary Vice-President of the Boy Scouts of America, whose two sons are former Scouts, has endorsed the new Scout training campaign, calling on all Americans to support Scouting at this time more than ever before.

Mr. Hoover said: "I am glad to learn that the Boy Scouts of America is going forward

Mr. Vincent P. McGee Weds Resident Of Philadelphia

At a marriage ceremony solemnized at nine o'clock this morning in St. Matthew's R. C. Church, Philadelphia, a Bristol man took as his bride a resident of Philadelphia. The groom is Mr. Vincent P. McGee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick A. McGee, 551 Linden street, his bride being Miss Marguerite V. Kinker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George J. Kinker, 3413 Princeton avenue, Philadelphia.

The priest who officiated at the ceremony was the Rev. Father William Pope; the ceremony being performed amidst an attractive setting of palms, cichorium ferns, white gladioli and chrysanthemums. Mr. Joseph Mattson, organist, in addition to playing the marches, accompanied the vocalist, Mr. Henry McCarthy, Philadelphia. Selections were: "Oh Sacred Heart! O Love Divine," "Ave Marie" (Gounod), "Panis Angelicus" (Franck), "O Lord! I Am Not Worthy," "Thou For Whom I've Long Been Sighing," and "Mother At Your Feet Is Kneeling."

The maid of honor was Miss Genevieve Kinker, sister of the bride, Philadelphia, and bridesmaids were Miss Marie C. Fraser, Richmond, Va., a cousin of the bride, and Miss Mary McGee, sister of the groom. Little Kathleen McGrath acted as flower girl. Mr. Lawrence McGee attended his brother as groomsmen; and ushers included Mr. James McGee, Jr., cousin of the groom; and Mr. John L. Kinker, Philadelphia, brother of the bride.

The former Miss Kinker was attractively gowned in white baronette satin, made on Princess lines, with sweetheart neckline. The gown had long sleeves with points extending over the hands, and trim of the dress was of satin buttons. She wore a tiara of seed pearls, with veil of tulle. Her shower bouquet was composed of brides roses and bouvardia.

The three attendants of the bride wore colonial style dresses trimmed in velvet, with sweetheart necklines. Miss Genevieve Kinker wore hyacinth blue; Miss Fraser, Spanish raisin; and Miss McGee, peacock blue. With these were worn sweetheart bonnets which had velvet ties. Their bouquets of roses, delphinium and pom-pom chrysanthemums, were set off by ribbon matching their gowns. The flower girl was attired in a colonial style dress of peach-pink, trimmed with baby blue velvet. Her doll hat was sweetheart shape, and in a wicker basket she carried mixed flowers and ribbon ribbons.

Mrs. Kinker, mother of the bride, wore for the event a gown of purple chiffon velvet with black accessories; and Mrs. McGee, mother of the groom, chose blue chiffon velvet with accessories of black.

Breakfast was served at Degenhardt's, Philadelphia, 75 guests being served. Mr. and Mrs. McGee will leave today for a motor trip to Niagara Falls, N. Y., and points in Maine. For the journey the bride wore a suit of wine tone, with astrakhan trim; and accessories of black. The couple, upon their return, will make their residence at 1623 Wilson avenue.

Gifts of the bride to her attendants were gold lockets and chains; and to the best man and ushers, Mr. McGee presented wallets.

The former Miss Kinker is a graduate of Strayer's Business College, Philadelphia, and Mr. McGee completed a course at St. Mark's Commercial School.

Today's Quiet Moment

(By Howard L. Zepp, Th. M.)

Heavenly Father, put it into the hearts of people to attend worship service in order that they may learn Thy way and gain strength from others who believe in Thee and who gather to worship Thee. Give us grace to go forth from our churches determined to walk according to Thy commandments. We know it avails us nothing to worship, if we do not put Thy commandments into practice. Amen.

GRAND THEATRE
"Comedy, Chills, Thrills . . . It's Great!" "Tense entertainment." "The best Chan hit yet." . . . "Has a new appeal."

That's what critics are saying about the hit, "Charlie Chan at the Wax Museum." It is the seventh of the popular series in which Sidney Toler has appeared, and judging by its reception so far, it's the best yet.

Directed by Lynn Shore, the latest Chan mystery has a top-notch cast of carefully selected players supporting Sidney Toler. Sen Yung, familiar as "No. 2 Son," is back.

For the settings in "Charlie Chan at the Wax Museum," which comes today to the Grand Theatre, 20th Century-Fox constructed a wax museum covering an entire sound stage.

BRISTOL THEATRE

action-packed western which opened yesterday at the Bristol Theatre.

Randall, who is rapidly becoming one of the screen's most popular western stars, plays a true son of the old west in this picture. He is Jack Cameron, horse trader, who is helping settlers get through to Oregon, battling the fur traders who don't want civilization to come to the west.

Trouble appears to be the middle name of Frankie Darro, young Monogram star, whose current feature, "In The Air," is at the Bristol Theatre with an all-star cast.

RITZ THEATRE

Bing Crosby's recording of the title song for his new picture, "If I Had My Way," now playing at the Ritz Theatre, is the best in the singer's career, in the opinion of David Butler, who produced and directed the film.

The song is a revival of an old-time hit by James Kendis and Lou Klein, and is one of the two solos Bing sings in the picture. The other is a new number by Johnny Burke and Jimmy Monaco titled "April Played the Fiddle."

DIAMOND ELEVEN TO TRY FOR A VICTORY

Undismayed at its defeat of last week, the Diamond Sporting Club eleven will attempt to break into the win column tomorrow afternoon when it meets the North Phillies A. A. on Mitchell's field, Andalusia.

Coach Diamanti, in his practice sessions this week, stressed out the forward pass defense as this was the cause of the Norristown defeat, a 29 yard pass. Coach Diamanti also pointed out opening day faults which should make his club stronger for the North Phillies try.

However, the North Phillies have one of the strongest teams to travel this vicinity. The Diamond club has never beaten the Phils, although two of the games ended in deadlocks.

Several former St. Ann's players have joined the Diamond squad and Coach Diamanti may use at least two in his starting line-up. It is doubtful whether McFarland or Marbello will be able to see action, the former suffering from an injured rib and Marbello has a bad shoulder.

Opening kick-off will take place at 2:30 o'clock.

SILVER LAKE STOCKED WITH 3200 ASSORTED FISH

Silver Lake received its initial supply of fish from the Pennsylvania Fish Commission hatcheries when 3200 assorted species were placed in the lake yesterday morning.

Of the total number 1700 were yellow perch, ranging in size from four inches to 10 inches. One thousand suckers were also placed in the lake yesterday as were also 500 full grown bream, or blue gills.

No bass, however, were in the shipment, nor could it be ascertained when any bass stocking would be done. Reports from a recent biological test indicated that the water was well-suited to bass. In all probability no bass will be stocked in the water this year.

Silver Lake, the almost completed WPA project on Bath Road, is an ideal spot for local fishermen, as far as location goes. It is hoped by local sporting clubs that some game fish stocking will be done in the next few months.

Croydon Ramblers To Play at New Brunswick

Croydon Ramblers make their debut in the newly formed Pennsylvania-New Jersey State Roller Hockey League by playing the Jersey City Greyhounds on McNally's rink.

The league consists of three of the most powerful teams from each State. The New Jersey teams are: Jersey City Greyhounds, New Brunswick, and Audubon Zephyrs. Representing Pennsylvania will be: Southwark A. C., Pottstown, and Croydon Ramblers.

Manager George Strickler and Coach "Pop" Keene plan on using their full roster, with the hope the local boys will bring home a victory.

HOCKEY SEASON TO OPEN

The Croydon Roller Rink announces the opening of roller hockey at the Croydon Rink beginning tonight. Regular league games will be played at Croydon every Saturday night. Game, 11:15 p. m. Three teams will represent Croydon and vicinity, i. e., Croydon Ramblers, Croydon Rex, and Southwark of Philadelphia, who will play at Croydon on their home floor. Also, the only girls' hockey team in the state, the Croydon Ramblettes, who will from time to time play many of the boys' teams here at Croydon and away.

the Bucks County Institute at Doylestown.

Superintendent of Schools, Samuel K. Faust, presented reports of the school physician and school nurse. He also presented an attendance report for the month of September. The attendance report indicated that better than 90 per cent of the total enrollment was present for the month.

The enrollment for the system this year was given as 1339 students, the largest enrollment in the history of the schools. Of this number 617 are enrolled at Cornwells in the junior and senior high school grades. The Andalusia school has an enrollment of 134. The Cornwells grammar grades have a total of 259 students. Ninety are enrolled at Edgington, Penn Valley has 41, and Trevoise has a total of 224 students.

His 83-acre farm is clear, but he has grave doubt what might happen to it if a third term is given President Roosevelt.

"I was never interested much in politics until now, except maybe serving on an election board a couple times," Farmer Trego said. "But now I'm very much interested, for America finds herself in the most serious situation since the Civil War, and you don't have to be a college graduate to realize that."

Mrs. Havard Himelright entertained the Edgely Card Club on Wednesday. Those attending high scores were: Mrs. Mary Watson and Mrs. Bergmann. Mrs. George Bintliff, Sr., spent the week-end in Reading, with relatives.

scouting; 320,000 adults are serving Scouting," concluded the speaker.

Back of the speakers' table were placed the American flag and the Bucks County Boy Scout Council flag. Each table was reserved for those from a certain town or section.

At the beginning of the dinner Scout Executive, Robert B. Goeller, introduced the Rev. Freeman, of the Salem Reformed Church, who offered the invocation.

Following the dinner, Thomas Ross was introduced as toastmaster of the meeting.

Hon. Calvin S. Boyer, president of the executive board of the Boy Scout Council made a few timely remarks upon the financial drive.

The following were introduced and responded with remarks: Mrs. Robert B. Goeller, Doylestown; Charles J. Matthews, of Langhorne, general chairman of the campaign; William Burgess, Burgess, of Morrisville; Hon. Thomas B. Stockham; John J. Lee, field executive; and Alice W. Tomlinson, office secretary.

Field Executive Lee next introduced five boys representing the five divisions of scouting—Cub, Scout, Explorer, Scout Sea Scout, and Rover Scout.

Scout Executive, R. B. Goeller, called for reports and the following totals of money and pledges were announced:

Bristol, $316; Churchville, $149; Doylestown, $1030; Lower Makefield, $135; Milford, N. J., $183; Newtown, $1244; Perkaskie, $237; Quakertown, $45; Yardley, $5; Southampton, $86; Morrisville, $55. Cash and pledges to date total $3283.50, it was stated.

This year there will be two report dinners, one at the Keystone Hotel, Bristol, on Tuesday, Oct. 15, and one at the Moose Hall, Quakertown, on Wednesday, Oct. 16. The closing victory dinner will be held in Salem Reformed Church on Tuesday, October 22.

The drive this year closes on Oct. 25 and the goal set is $15,000, which is the amount of the 1940 budget.

Half Million Greet Willkie In Phila. and Hear Speeches

I have pointed out many times that production—and only production—can provide us with a base for economic prosperity.

I now say that only production—not orders—can defend us from aggressors.

Incidentally, I should like to know just what that phrase "on order" means.

Last May, the third-term candidate told us over the radio that we had 1700 modern tanks and armored cars "on hand and on order." It so happens that at that time we had on hand 142 tanks and armored cars. All the others—more than 1500—were ghost tanks and ghost cars.

But I happen to know of a large manufacturing company in Michigan. It has orders for many hundreds of tanks. Those were included, I assume among the ghost tanks "on order" that the third-term candidate spoke about. But this particular manufacturer has not yet built the building in which those ghost tanks are to be manufactured.

I happen, also, to know of an aircraft company which has several million dollars worth of "orders." Presumably these airplanes are among the ghost airplanes on order to which the third-term candidate referred. But that company is still working on the architectural and engineering designs—not the actual walls, but the design—of the building in which the aircraft are to be manufactured.

So what we are really talking about is not tanks on order or airplanes on order—but factories on order.

For seven years we have also had prosperity on order.

Now it is easy for us, sitting here tonight, to laugh at this ridiculous phrase "on hand and on order." It is easy for us to make fun of this bluffing attempt to cover up the deficiencies in our national defense in a critical election year.

But I pray God, my fellow Americans, that our laughter does not die in our throats. I pray God that our descendants, turning the pages of their history books, may at least be able to smile at this attempted hoax.

Yet as I survey the perils with which we are even now confronted, I confess that I do not anticipate much laughter. I do not think that our sons, or our grandsons, will find much cause for humor in the record of the past five years.

Certainly, the next time any official figures are announced concerning the progress of the defense program, we shall be in a wary mood. We shall be looking for the catch.

For I see ahead of us a grim task. The task of arming our democracy so fully and so rapidly that the aggressors will not dare to strike.

For every moment we have lost in the past, and for every moment we are losing now, I see for our children and our grandchildren a harder task, a more dangerous world.

This is the challenge to our generation. For our own sake, but still more for theirs, we must arm America now. In Cleveland last Wednesday I listed a number of things we still need to equip a modest army of 750,000 men. It will take at least 13 months to get some of these things. It will take two years or more to get all of them.

For instance, we need 1400 thirty-seven millimeter anti-aircraft guns. To get them will take 13 months. On August 1 we had on hand no eight-inch howitzers whatever. We need 48 and it will take months to get them.

We need many 16-inch coast defense guns. It will take at least two and a half years to get them.

It takes a year to build a pursuit plane, and a year to train its pilot. It takes two or three years to build a long-range bomber, and about two years to train its crew. The pilot of a four-engine bomber must be trained for four years.

These are not political arguments. These are facts—hard facts. We must face these facts before we can defend democracy in a dangerous world.

But now we must meet this further question. What chance is there of obtaining these vital necessities under the New Deal? What chance is there of obtaining them before it is too late? That is the question I want to lay before you tonight.

There is, I think, a false notion that our defense problem is a recent problem; that it came upon us suddenly. The fact is that the New Deal has known for many years that we were faced with this problem. The third term candidate told Congress in January, 1936, that America must save itself from foreign quarrels and foreign attack through adequate defense.

Today is Oct. 4, 1940—nearly five years later. All the democracies on the Continent of Europe have collapsed. Britain fights with her back to the wall. The ruthless aggressors have banded together in a pact aimed at the United States. Attack is closer than ever. America is still unsafe.

Our defense is still inadequate. Compared with the rest of the world, it is far less adequate than it was in 1936.

For nearly five years the New Deal has been aware of the growing need for defense. It has expressed that need on many occasions.

For example, in his message to Congress in January, 1938, the third-term candidate said, "As commander-in-chief of the Army and Navy . . . it is my constitutional duty to report to the Congress that our national defense is, in the light of the increasing armaments of other nations, inadequate for purposes of national security and requires increase for that reason."

Yet here we are in 1940, and we find that it will take one, two and even three years to build a modest defense system.

What is the reason for this? The New Deal has not lacked information. Through the State Department and the Army and Navy its total knowledge regarding foreign Powers and military developments has been as good as any in the world.

The New Deal has not lacked money. In those five years it has spent a total of forty-three billion dollars.

What then has it lacked? It has lacked the ability to get things done.

It has lacked a fundamental understanding of the forces of production. It has lacked a fundamental regard for the forces that make democracy strong.

Think about this. Turn it over in your minds. It is the very heart of the issue of this campaign.

Without increased production we cannot defend ourselves.

I want to place before you the example of France.

France was defeated in thirty-four days. But the Battle of France had been lost before it began. It had been lost in the wasted years when France was floundering under the Blum Government—her own New Deal.

For instance, French production of steel, which had slowly increased from 1932 to 1937, declined again in 1938, just when France should have been producing more steel than ever before in her life.

At the close of the World War in 1918, France was producing about 1000 airplanes a month. In 1936 she was producing 150 a month. At that point the Blum Government decided to nationalize aircraft factories. They were almost all taken over by the Government—and production dropped to fifty a month.

At the time of the Battle of France, the best that the French aircraft industry could produce was 300 airplanes a month.

We, too, in America increased our general production level from 1932 to 1937—though our rate of increase was slower than that of most other countries. But we, too, turned downward in 1938.

We turned downward two years after the present third term candidate had observed the necessity for an "adequate defense." We turned downward because the New Deal was absorbed in its own political objectives: the attack against business and the attack against the Supreme Court.

While total industrial production was declining in these critical years, our airplane industry made some progress. But it was not enough for adequate defense.

At the close of the World War the United States, like France, was producing about 1000 airplanes a month. In 1937, one year after the Administration had recognized the need for an "adequate defense," we produced less than 1000 military planes during the entire year.

Even in 1939, three years after the New Deal announced the need for a defense program, we produced only 3000 military planes.

And this year, with all the desperate need of Britain and ourselves, we shall be lucky to produce 7000 military planes—little more than half the rate of 20 years ago.

Think what a difference it would have made to the democracies of the world if the American aircraft production of 1940 had been attained in 1939. Seven thousand airplanes from America in 1939 would have given the democracies another lease on life. Seven thousand airplanes in 1938 would have meant 10,000 or 15,000 today. It would have changed the course of history.

The reason for our failure was that the New Deal theorists and the New Deal politicians blocked the creative forces of our people.

They could have provided new jobs for thousands of young men by building American aircraft production up to defense requirements. Instead they kept those thousands idle on the relief rolls. Relief was politically more attractive than defense.

You know and I know that the system of free enterprise can outstrip any dictator on earth. The slave-labor of modern Europe cannot compete with free men, well-fed, well-housed and working reasonable hours.

I have earned my bread both as a worker and as a manager. I know what free men can do. Given a chance to go to work, American labor and American industry can outstrip the world.

Don't be fooled by all the money that the New Deal is talking about. Don't be fooled by all the power that it has been granted. Money and power have been the New Deal remedies from the beginning. And neither money nor power has ever solved any fundamental problem in American life.

You can't buy tanks if the factories don't exist.

And politicians, however powerful, don't build factories.

So long as money and political power remains its only remedies, this Administration will be incompetent to achieve defense. Its record with the present National Defense Advisory Council is an example. The able men on that Council cannot get things done because the third term candidate has kept all the power in his own hands.

The results of incompetence are written large upon the history of the last few years. Incompetence invites bold action on the part of other Powers. The longer the United States remains incompetent to defend itself, the closer are we drawn toward war.

We must stop that drift toward war. We must stop that incompetence.

Fellow Americans, I want to lead the fight for peace.

I know how to lead that fight; I will lead this Nation back to work.

The first step toward peace is to put a job in every home.

The second step toward peace is to mobilize American industry for the production of armaments. This would be the greatest industrial undertaking in the history of the world.

I dare to imagine such an undertaking because I have faith in the American people.

I also have faith in many able men, both in labor and industry, whom I know personally, and whom I would trust with temporary authority.

Our entire experience in American industry demonstrates a project of that size cannot even be imagined if it has to pass over the desk of one man.

And the New Deal has not imagined

it. The New Deal is afraid of it. The spokesmen of the New Deal have even been afraid to give the public any idea of its total cost.

Fellow Americans, so long as we are haunted by fear we cannot hope to preserve our precious liberties.

We must, rather, awake from the bitter dreams, from the discouragement and despair, the poverty, the unemployment, and the fear.

We must awake. We must awake. It is not true that our days are finished or that our industries are dead. These are bad dreams that we have had. But now I am calling to you. I am telling you to awake. I am pleading with you to brush aside what was never true—to join me in building America, in rebuilding America, in building a new America, so strong, so full of hope, that we can keep the peace that we want, the democracy that we want, and the liberties that we want. That is my plan for America.
